

Golf with John Beasley!

Actor John Beasley -- who is celebrated for his work on the big and small screens -- will be golfing in the golf tournament hosted by the Omaha North softball program on June 5th at the Knolls golf course.

Beasley was born in Omaha and first caught the "acting bug" after an oral presentation of a dramatic text. He continued to perform in high school, college and in local community theaters. But he delayed his dream of becoming a professional actor to enjoy raising his sons.

When his youngest son began college, Beasley pursued his goal of becoming a professional actor at the age of 45.

Beasley got his 'big break' when he was cast alongside Oprah Winfrey in the television show, "Brewster Place." Since then, he has had recurring TV appearances on "CSI," "NCIS," "Boston Legal," "Judging Amy," and was a star on the hit "Everwood."

Several of his major motion picture credits include:

- "Walking Tall" (2004) with Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson and Johnny Knoxville;
- "The Sum of All Fears" (2002) with James Cromwell and Morgan Freeman;
- "Crazy in Alabama" (1999) with director Antonio Banderas;
- "The Apostle" (1997) with Robert Duvall;
- "Losing Isaiah" (1995) with Jessica Lange and Halle Berry

Beasley's desire to share his passion for theater with underserved children and adults led him to found the John Beasley Theater and Workshop in 2002. Through the organization, Beasley teaches his craft to others and constantly searches for fresh talent. He also recruits other nationally known actors to perform in his productions.

In 2005, Beasley received an honorary doctorate of humane letters from the University of Nebraska at Omaha for his contributions to the community.

We are more than thrilled that a nationally-known actor, native Omahan, and incredible friend to the North Omaha Community will be golfing in our event.
